NuView Systems Wins Honorable Mention At HR Tech Awards

Wilmington, MA – April 14, 2003

Against the backdrop of the HR Tech 2003 Conference in Chicago last week, the conference producers, HRevents and IQPC, sponsored the first annual HR Technology Excellence Awards Dinner & Ceremony.

“The HR Technology Excellence Award winners represent the very best of human resources technology throughout the world. Nearly 75 leading organizations worldwide applied across five categories for the right to be named best in class,” commented Seth Kerker, Executive Director of the HR Technology Excellence Awards program.

In the category of Innovative & Creative Development of HR Technology Solutions – HRMS, the Honorable Mention was awarded to NuView Systems, Inc. for its MyHRIS product suite, which includes comprehensive tools for HR & Benefits administration, Applicant Tracking, Training & Development, Succession Planning, Workflow, ESS, MSS and Metrics.

“The award application was quite rigorous”, explained Shafiq Lokhandwala, NuView Systems CEO, “requiring applicants to document adherence to accepted technology standards, provide evidence of creativity and originality, proof of measurable productivity gains from usage of the product, and demonstrate how ROI was achieved by end users.”

“This is a great honor for NuView Systems and it only serves to underscore our mission to provide innovative, cost-effective tools for HR professionals,” commented Saïd Eastman, Director of Sales, NuView Systems, who was on-site to receive the award.

The HR Technology Excellence Advisory Board of Judges, made up of industry experts, selected one winner, one runner up, and an honorable mention across each category. The winners were announced live April 10 at the black tie awards ceremony held at the Sheraton in Chicago.
